The World's Hope

Lesson for October 12, 1958

IS THERE hope for the world? Is there hope for me? All human beings ask that question one way or another. For all citizens of this planet, with very few exceptions, can see that this world is not as it ought to be. The more unselfish, the more public-minded, the more sensitive to the needs of human beings a person is, the more deeply he will feel the woes of the world. All persons not smothered in the selfish enjoyment of their own private paradise (if they can afford one) will agree that this world sorely needs hope.

Dr. Foreman

Prisoners of Hope

But is there hope? Here opinions differ. Some of those who are most keenly certain that the world is in a bad way, are sadly convinced that it will not grow better—it can't. The ancient Greeks, and many other races besides, thought of history as going around in circles. The world would go downhill and up by turns, around and around the wheel of fate. No disaster, and no improvement, would ever be permanent.

But the Jews were a peculiar people. They were peculiar among other things for their hope. Alone among the ancient peoples of the world, the Hebrews thought of history not as a circle but as a straight line, an arrow with a point, aimed and going somewhere. If ancient men thought of a Golden Age, they placed it in the far past. The Jews dreamed of a Golden Age, too but theirs was never in the past.

This hope, as centuries went on, became centered in one Deliverer to come. They called him by various names: Messiah, Son of David, God's Chosen One, the Rescuer or Savior. It is clear from the stories Luke tells that even very old people like Anna and Simeon lived in hope that they might see the coming of the New Age. Somehow when they saw the baby Jesus they felt sure that the great Hope was now becoming real, at last. Imprisoned in circumstances they might have been; but always as "prisoners of hope."

Hope Deferred

The sad thing was that the great majority of the Hebrew people, when the long-awaited Messiah really came, could not recognize him. Jesus the carpenter, Jesus the radical teacher, Jesus the friend of sinners, did not fit the patterns and the formulas by which they had described the Coming One. As they would have said, "He does not fulfill the Prophecies." Nevertheless, some did see that he fulfilled the deeper meaning of the ancient prophets' hopes. And so by degrees the number of believers in the Messiah (or Christ, which means just the same thing) grew and grew. Most of the Jewish people were left with a sense of hope deferred. And indeed many Christians were likewise disappointed. For it appears to have been the expectation of the early Christians that Christ's absence in heaven was only temporary, that is to say for a very short time, a few days, weeks, months, years perhaps. Every one hoped and most of them expected to live to see Jesus bursting through the blue sky, riding on a cloud, coming to be King of the World. But Jesus did not come that way. Even in our time some Christians expect to outlive the world's time.

Hope Abides

Nevertheless, and despite all the disappointments and misunderstandings, the hope lives on. Most Christians no longer expect to see Jesus coming on a space-ship. But all Christians do live by hope. That Christ will reign is a hope and a faith that will not down. That in the long run his cause will conquer, that "the kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdoms of our Lord and of his Christ," this the church believes. We have to be modest and humble, or we should be so, about the "how" of hope's fulfillment. For we remember how mistaken the Jews of Jesus' time were, in their interpretation of prophesy, and we know how many Christian interpretations have been smashed by history's matter-of-factness. But we shall not be dashed. We believe that God is not going to be defeated, we believe that against Christ and his church even the gates of hell shall not prevail.

Dog Vaccinations Scheduled

The Appomattox County Health Department wishes to remind county residents of the up-coming three-year Rabies Vaccination Clinics between Oct. 13 and 17.

With hunting season rapidly approaching, the clinics take on new significance, as the hunting dog will be exposed more completely to the wildlife carriers of rabies and also, may mingle with dogs not protected. An un-vaccinated dog offers a potential threat not only to other animals but to all humans which are in contact with him.

For these reasons, it is strongly recommended by the Medical Director, Dr. F. J. Clements, that owners have their dogs vaccinated at one of the clinics listed below:

Oct. 13
Hixburg, Hix's Store, 1:00 to 2:30 P. M.; Pamplin, Town Hall, 3:00 to 4:30 P. M.

Oct. 14
Chap Area: Jones' Store, 1:00 to 3:00 P. M.

Oct. 15
Appomattox High School Shop, 3:00 to 5:00 P. M.

Oct. 16
Stonewall, Community Center, 1:00 to 2:30 P. M. Oakville, at Martin's Store, 3:00 to 4:30 P. M.

Oct. 17
Bent Creek: McCormick's Store, 1:00 to 2:30 P. M. Vera, Bryant's Serv. Sta., 3:00 to 4:30 P. M.

Comment On Sports

By Pete Fritchie

Washington.- The football season got under way with several major upsets, but for the most part, one would not have known the new points-after-touchdown rule was in effect to look at the scores. They seemed like scores under the old one-point-after-touchdown scoring.

For example, Nebraska downed Penn State 14-7; Pittsburgh scored an impressive 27-6 victory over U. C. L. A., and North Carolina State beat North Carolina 21-14. All of that sounds like six and seven points scoring — though it could have been six points and eight points in some combinations.

One upset which showed the effects of the new rule was South Carolina's upset of Duke, 8-0, which incidentally gave the Gamecocks two upsets over Duke in three years. The interesting angle in the North Carolina State upset of North Carolina is the fact that, even though North Carolina State had won Atlantic Coast honors in 1957, the experts had just "rated" them of the 1958 race.

On the other hand, Jim Tatum's North Carolina University team was supposed to be ready to take Conference honors this year. Nebraska, incidentally, had won only one of ten games last season, and probably pulled the biggest upset of the opening day's battle by downing Penn State 14-7.

Ocean Route Surveyed

This third telephone cable under the Atlantic is to be completed in 1961. The ocean section will run from Oban, Scotland, to White Bay, Newfoundland.

An overflow crowd attended the annual revival and home coming at the Mount Airy Baptist Church last Sunday. The pastor, Rev. Pryor preached in the morning, and Dr. C. A. Eubanks delivered the afternoon sermon. The Scott Zion Choir from Madison Heights rendered special music. The Rev. L. S. Jones delivered the evening sermon and will conduct the week of service. Dinner was served by the ladies of the church. The offering for the day was very good.

An appreciative crowd attended the regular preaching and communion service at the Galilee Baptist Church last Sunday morning. The pastor delivered a special sermon from the subject, Defending our Spiritual Freedom. The church choir rendered special music. The offering was very good. A special purse was presented to the pastor for his vacation. The Lord's Supper was served at the close of the morning sermon. Two members were given the right hand of fellowship and welcomed into the church. The covenant was read to the church.

The Appomattox Trumpeters will conduct the evening service at the Promise Land Baptist Church this Sunday at 8 P. M.

The rally conducted by the choir of the Proimse Land church last Sunday evening was a success. The pastor of the church preached. Music was furnished by the audience. The roll call of the choir members netted a total sum of $34.25. All members of the choir who did not report are asked to bring their reports to the next choir meeting on Tuesday night before the fourth Sunday of this month.

The Rev. Curtis Elliott will conduct the preaching service at the Mount Shiloh Baptist Church the Sunday morning in the absence of the pastor, who is on his vacation.

BLOODMOBILE NEEDS OF THE RED CROSS

Red Cross collected 1945 pints of blood in September, 93 per cent of the region's 2083 quota, it has been reported by H. L. (Squire) Browning, of Princeton, W. Va., volunteer chairman of the Roanoke Regional Blood Program.

In addition, Browning announced that collections in July, August and September totaled 6150 pints, or 95 per cent of quota for the period.

Browning expressed the hope that October through December collections will top 100 per cent. "This will enable us to continue our liberal blood distribution policy," Browning said.

Lagging blood collections this summer threatened to force restrictions on blood shipped by Red Cross to hospitals outside the 29-county region. Currently the Red Cross regional Blood Program supplies blood to area residents no matter where they are hospitalized.

Browning lauded four Red Cross Chapters, Princeton, W. V.; Giles County, Clifton Forge, and Waynesboro, for exceeding their 115-pint goals in September Bloodmobile visits.

He also cited the Greenbrier County, W. Va., and Covington chapters for coming within 10 pints of the 115-pint quota. Roanoke, too, received a verbal pat on the back from Browning for its collection of 92 pints the week of September 15 and 92 pints the week of September 22. Roanoke's weekly quota is 100 pints.

Collections in September were 239 pints ahead of the same month last year, while July through September donations were 647 pints above the period in 1957.

Homemakers Items

Barring unusual circumstances, average food prices next year will remain nearly the same as in 1958, report Extension specialists.

Following U. S. Department of predictions, the specialists said food prices this fall and winter are expected to decline slightly because of increased supplies.

Prices of food last spring and early summer reached an all-time high in June —an increase of nearly 5% over the 1957 average. This increase, most evident in fruits and vegetables and meats, was partly caused by short supplies and higher consumer demand.

Eggs are more plentiful in most markets this fall, resulting in lower prices than last fall. This trend is expected to continue into the early part of 1959.

Consumers are expected to continue using more processed vegetables in 1959. Stocks of canned vegetables are down but indications are that there will be in demand in most regions the continued high shortage of stock in are not likely to keep for some processed foods next year.

Increases are expected fruits in 1959, while be evident in others supplies are expected to dant supply. Shortages ed in apricot, cherry apple, and plum supplies

About The Home

By Frances Dell

The American home is getting dressier all the time. It seems that ornamental furnishings of the past are top choice today. The past craze of built-in furniture is very much in the minority.

Early American reigns over all other traditional furniture styles. The newest collections feature schoolmaster desks, settees, apothecary chests and painted Pennsylvania Dutch designs.

French and Italian Provincial styles are good sellers. The exotic Oriental is high on the list of what people are buying.

There is a great deal of interest in the design created by the grain of different woods.

Probably because of the trend of smaller homes, there is an increase in double-duty pieces, such as coffee tables that rise to dining height and sofas that convert to beds.

Filigree and glass dividers are a strong trend. Some homemakers figure out their own designs but there are glass and filigree dividers on the market of outstanding beauty.

Color is stronger all around. Even neutrals are deeper, the newest being the muddy greens. Accent colors are brighter, and unexpected colors are coupled for startling effects.

House plants are large and often used in place of a piece of furniture.

Democrats plan house-to-house vote drive.

Canada and Britain to increase Commonwealth aid.
